THE SHEILD 1990

The Annie Wright School
827 N. Tacoma Ave.
Tacoma, WA 98403

The Annie Wright School is a place that appropriately fits the theme of Check Us Out! At Annie Wright there are so many opportunities open to each student that will become apparent by checking us out.

Annie Wright is a K through twelve institution that has many of its standards based on academic excellence and tradition. Along with much of the tradition that AWS is based on comes many more learning experiences that are often outside of the classroom. In the lower school there are numerous after school and extracurricular activities offered for each student to partake in. Such activities include soccer, softball, gymnastics, competitive swimming, synchronized swimming, basketball, cub scouts, brownies, and girl scouts. Many of these programs are led by AWS faculty, staff, and parents. The after school programs help to enrich each lower school students classroom studies. In addition to the after school programs, such things as extended day care, piano, string and flute lessons are offered to all students.

In the middle school, which is an age of transition for many students, extra curricular activities are in abundance. Interscholastic sports are offered all year round. Such sports include volleyball, soccer, cross-country, basketball, softball, baseball, track, and tennis. As well, many extra curricular social programs are opened as opportunities outside of the classroom. Student government, Odyssey of the mind, math team, Future Problem Solvers, dances, ski trips, drama, music, and class trips are all such activities in the middle school. In addition boarding life is an option for middle school girls.

In the upper school the opportunities are phenomenal. Taking small classes with much personal attention, and no members of the opposite sex for distraction has produced many generations of successful women. However, each Annie Wright becomes fulfilled with all the extra opportunities available to each girl. With approximately twenty clubs and only ninety students, each person has plenty of opportunities to be involved with what they want. Interscholastic sports are important. Such sports as volleyball, cross-country, basketball, softball, and tennis are competitive each year. Being an Annie Wright gator, dressed in blue and gold, offers a lot of school spirit. Resident students take many weekend trips from river rafting to whale watching. Many other popular commitments are numerous community service projects which bring community involvement to the student body. Upper school students also experience many international tastes too with many boarding students from all over the world.

With all Annie Wright has to offer its students besides a great education, it is a place of interest to any young person who is interested in becoming a well rounded person. Any such interested person is invited to CHECK US OUT!

The class of 1990 embarked on a class discussion to decide on the dedication for this year's Sheild. The discussion took us through much debate on topics ranging from South African Apartheid, to the end of the 1980's. After the long debate had finally narrowed the choices down to two, one Red Tie piped up and said "Why not dedicate our yearbook to individuality?". As the word was said, it was as if a great sigh of relief was heard throughout the room, for individuality was the term that had been searched for from the start.

Individuality stood for all of what we had discussed. Each Red Tie is an individual with her own tastes. As well, the world issues and topics chosen as candidates were all issues that bring uniqueness to the world. Along with our dedication each senior has submitted one picture that exhibits personal individuality.

The statement that we would like this to leave behind, is that our class is unique in itself and among the student body. We would also like to encourage others to develop individuality and follow the road where their heart takes them, not their friends or society. In a world of so much change, each person's individuality is that much more important to bring all views to a common vertex. In the end, the Red Ties always achieved that vertex, at least among themselves. Good Luck and Best Wishes ... The Class of 1990

Founder's Day

Founder's Day is another one of those traditional days that actively involves the senior class. Founder's Day is a day that recognizes the founders of Annie Wright and all the heritage associated with AWS. On Founder's Day, the senior class eats a cake that has had fun trinkets baked into the cake for the class to find as they chow down. The surprises are the same every year and each one means something different. There is a cross, for the most religious, a thimble for the working woman, a dime for the richest and a ring for the first married. This year's lucky seniors were- Kristie F.-cross, Cygnia F.-ring and the thimble- Krista E.-and the dime was at the bottom of the pan.

COLLEGE

College planning is a big deal at Annie Wright College placement is close to 100%. Students begin college searches in their junior year and do much preparation as seniors. As seniors, the final decisions are made as to which colleges each senior will apply to. The college counselor is Andrea "Fergie" Merlino. She becomes Seniors' best friend, her office becomes a favorite hangout. Each senior spends much of the year in her office discussing future plans and how to attack those plans. Her bookshelf of college catalogs becomes a well used tool of the average 12th grader. Fergie's office phone becomes over used from calling admissions offices all over the country regarding Annie Wright students . . . The process is hectic and frustrating, but worth it in the end.

Checking Out

After becoming a senior the time to check out of Annie Wright approaches. It is time to go on to bigger and better things. This is just a last glimpse of the class of 1990 in their usual setting being the goofs that they are. It is now time for 1990 to check out, but they, at the same time will not soon be forgotten!

Krista Elliot and Katy Albea both share a moment at the Three Cedars AIDS housing project.

Maria Hoyle and Michelle Brignone demonstrate the look of best friends. "A best friend is one with whom you dare to be yourself?"

At left: The seniors have finally reached success, they found the spade! The clue: It's on the Orient Express. Where it was: Buried outside the Chapel.

Kristie Fleming and Anne Rivers receive recognition for their outstanding senior year volleyball talent.

Julia Bates ponders the meaning of the senior hoopla. Where will I go to college? Will I graduate? Is there really life beyond the hedge?

Keiko Nakatsuka also received an award for having outstanding volleyball abilities as a senior.

Check Into The Past

What were the first words of seniors?

"Pretty"- K. Elliott
 "Mummy"- K. Tulley
 "Sex"- J. Kirkland
 "Dadda"- J. Bates, K. Fleming
 "Yes"- K. Cottingham
 "Cookie"- K. Albea

What were those childhood memories that scared the seniors so badly?

"Eating a slug" K. Fleming
 "I fell into a pool on a tricycle."- J. Kirkland
 "I fell in the toilet, and the lid closed on top of my head and I was stuck!"- E. Robinson

Yes, even the seniors had one of those special toys that children sometimes bond to. What were some of those? Everything from toy inflatable rabbits to real live bunnies! Kate bonded to a piggy, and Kath had her bumble and cozy!

Once the seniors were born they began to grow and eventually they became teenagers. As teenagers the seniors began to experience driving and dating. Here a few funny first dates and driving stories.

"My first kiss was a nightmare!"-

K. Cottingham

"Kissed for five minutes straight and set a record!" - K. Elliott

"My first traffic violation was reckless behavior on a bike." - K. Fleming

"I was scared!" - K. Albea

Some most embarrassing moments that belong to seniors were kind of funny!

"I lost my bikini while jet-skiing!" -J. Bates

"I took a shower fully dressed." -J. Kirkland

"I did the splits right in front of a whole bunch of people in the grocery store, and I didn't even mean to do them!" -R. Bacon

Once seniors finally got to the top they had the following reactions to actually being a senior:

"Great because it means I get to graduate." -K. Elliot

"STRESS!" -K. Fleming

"Exciting but it is hard always worrying about college." -J. Bates

"Responsibility, stress, and the reality of growing up!" - Jessie K.

The senior class has definitely come a long way since the long past days of these old photos. They have grown up into big people, shedding their little people images. Can you tell which little person image belongs with each big person?

Don't be deceived. The seniors are still growing. These were their responses when asked about plans for their own children.

"Adoption." -K. Fleming

"To be happy" -K. Elliot

"Have enough to make a baseball team." -J. Bates

"Not to have any." -K. Albea

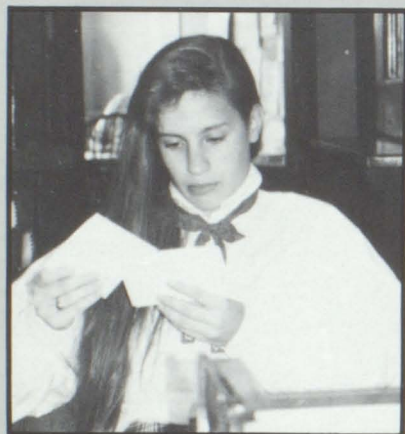

"Boys!" -E. Robinson

"Honesty and encourage individuality." -J. Kirkland

"To always be there for them." -K. Tulley

Checking For The Best?

Characteristics of ... SENIORITIS!

1. Exhaustion, leading to an ulcer.
2. Regression to previous years, favoring 2nd grade.
3. Stress leading to lack of interest in college.
4. Announcements about how long is left- still less than underclassmen!
5. "I don't care" attitudes followed by "My dog is bigger than your dog!"
6. More and more people getting in trouble threatening graduation.
7. Power trips over anything!
8. More and more seniors losing track of time, especially class time, leading to more stupid excuses.
9. Singing to any and every song that comes on the radio.
10. Forgetting to park in the Kemper Center-Oops, Not!
11. Showers become fewer and farther between.
12. May 90 encompassing every aspect of mere existence!

Questions Seniors most often ask themselves!

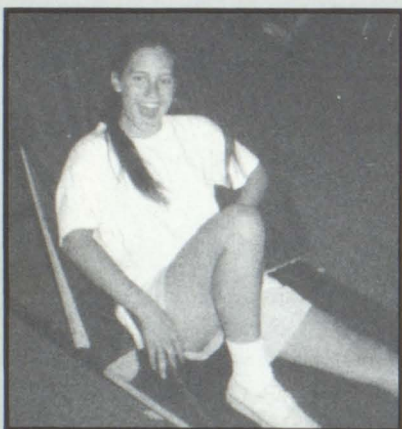

1. Is it worth it?
2. Where will I be in 6 months?
3. How much longer?
4. Why do underclassmen think they are so cool?
5. Does no one understand this?
6. Should I do this so the colleges will think I'm with it?
7. Where is Fergie?
8. What color dress should I get?
9. To apply or not to apply- what a question!
10. I wonder if college will be fun . . . hard?
11. Whoever said high school was fun?

Make checks payable to the Junior Class

When it is said to make checks payable to the junior class that is said because the juniors are traditionally known for their great money making schemes. In the upper school, the 11th grade class is given a lot of financial responsibility. The juniors pay for the spring prom, May Day flowers, and breakfast for the seniors on the morning of May Day. The things that the previous classes have done to raise all the money that they need are such events as Santa Grams, The Kissing Bandit, Civies, Days, Bake Sales/ Cake Auctions, throwing pies at faculty, selling candy, weekly milk lunch donut sales, and Kemper Center concessions. This year the junior class has done many of the traditional fund raisers as well as adding a few of their own to the list. They had car washes, weekly pizza sales, and they sold tumblers in class colors, that had an AWS gator on its side.

In addition, there are many other exciting traditions that the juniors partake in. Such events as ring dinner, when the juniors receive their class rings, Senior Skip, when the juniors get to be essentially seniors for the day, Step Songs, and of course the dreaded task of serving food at special luncheons. The junior year at Annie Wright is an exciting lead up to actually becoming a senior. With that lead in comes an increase in responsibility. Many juniors find that they were not warned about how much work goes along with being an eleventh grader.

Since the juniors have an increase in responsibility, it can also lead the juniors to develop skills crucial in working with a large group of people and all their ideas. This year they have mastered this skill pretty well and have used many good systems that have distributed work, and incorporated everyone. We wish the junior class good luck next year and give them a round of congratulations for the outstanding job that they have done this year!

Very Top: Erin Anderson, Nicki Hess, and Lynn Liu appear to be enjoying themselves in the hallway in front of the library. Gee I wonder what class they might be late for? Underneath: Trina looks to be in a creative mood with finger paint! Next Down: Elaine, Kathy, and Almut are getting excited for the Christmas Carol Service. At Right: Shosh leads a class meeting to discuss the next fund raiser. Far Right: They look so enthused to be listening to what Shosh is saying!

Leading the life of a sophomore is quite stressful. Sophomores must deal with the harsh reality that they are no longer the "new kids on the block", and are expected to know all the school rules and be able to cope with highschool life. There are term papers to write, books to read, endless hours of homework, and finals. Sports, Clubs, and drama takes hours each day. The sophomore class is also the largest class in the upper school. Being the largest class has both advantages and disadvantages. Some advantages to having the biggest class are you get to know a variety of people, more ideas, and we have the ability to make the most money. On the other hand, trying to run a class meeting is like trying to tame wild animals. We can't always get to know everyone in our class as well as we want, but at the end you learn to know everyone.

Bridget Bjork
Kelly Brown
Becky Green

Alice Griffin
Alicia Jensen
Shawna Krantz

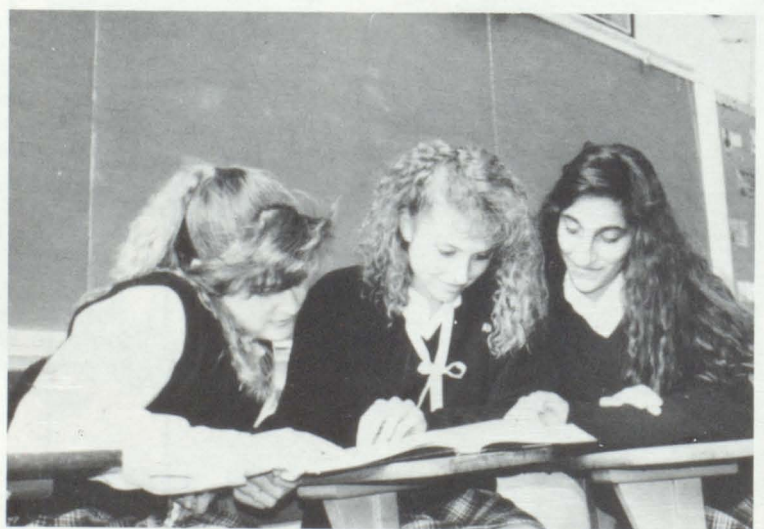

The freshman class this year is the smallest of the Upper School, therefore, we all know each other pretty well. We've thrown together brief summaries of everybody's character.

Bridget - She is a smart, curious, sweet, considerate person who is on the phone non-stop after school.

Kelly - She is always chewing gum, always laughing. Her classmates consider her sweet, pretty and intelligent. Kelly's basketball season was cut short by her sprained finger.

Gigi - She is always smiling or laughing. She also gets up five minutes before class starts and is talkative and honest. Gigi has a craze for Michael Jordan's incredible, perfect slams!

Becky G. - Becky can easily be described as the sweetest most easy to get along with freshman. She likes going to the mall with friends especially with her side kick Sarah Robinson.

Alice - She has a way of making people laugh without even trying to. Besides that she is easy to get along with and has an obsession for Fred Savage Sahwna - Shawna is friends with everyone because of her great personality. She asks questions in class, and when she isn't asking them she always knows the answer to them.

Tina - The word everyone associates with Tina is "Morbid." She has a distinctively loud laugh and always brings a water bottle to class. She is smart, talkative and asks a lot of questions.

Becky N. - She is inquisitive, quite, giving and smart. She usually knows the answer to our English word games and is in knowledge bowl.

Tina Metroplos
Becky Nevissi
Gina Pietras

Sarah Robinson
Anna Tresness
Pintipa
Vadhanasiripong

Smarter, Wiser We Will Be; We're The Class Of '93

Gina - She has to be the most inquisitive, imaginative, competitive person in the class. She writes funny poems and "is most likely to make big bucks!"

Sarah - Sarah has a great sense of humor and is full of energy. She tried basketball for the first time this year and discovered she is good at it. She loves horses, especially hers.

Anna - "Smart, beautiful, talented in all areas, has a great personality, a gorgeous smile, and is an all around wonderful person." This is a direct quote from Anna herself, and we all agree.

Pintipa - Pintipa is known for her dislike of animals. She is a constant source of laughter especially in health. We're tried forever to get her to take the rubber band out of her hair.

Out Working

Many Upper School students hold jobs. It is an important aspect of student life in the upper school, because so many people do hold jobs. The majority of students hold summer jobs because of our large boarding population. Many day students, however, hold jobs through out the school year. Jobs are good experiences for high school age kids. They provide experience of holding down a job and having to be a reliable worker. As well, the students who hold jobs have extra spending money and the responsibility of managing their money, keeping a job can help to keep kids out of trouble, and it looks nice to a college. Students at Annie Wright hold jobs at a variety of places. McDonalds, Dairy Queen, Tohoma Terrace, Pierce County Parks and Recreation, Vashon Thriftway, Ticketmaster, Tacoma Soccer Center, Host, Tacoma west Cinemas, Harbor Mall Cinema, and even the YMCA. As well, jobs can be ways for students to become involved in things they are interested in and to meet many new and interesting people.

OUT Of The Classroom

FASHION SHOW

The annual Mother Daughter tea and fashion show occurred early this year. The event took place in January this year, rather than the traditional early spring. Fashions were modeled from such stores as Benetton, Casual Corner, Jasminka, and Jamaica Moon. Students and their mothers saw fashions ranging from this years hottest spring looks to vintage clothing dating back to the roaring twenties. All the models were Annie Wright upper school students. After the fashion show all mothers and their daughters were offered tea, punch, tea sandwiches, and cookies in the dining room creating an enjoyable afternoon for all.

Int'l WEEK

International Week was very exciting this year. There were many interesting customs shared and foods sampled. Some of the weeks highlights included a student variety show, an international civies day, a special assembly with African dancers, and a different kind of food each day for lunch. Menus included a tostadita bar, Miso soup, chicken curry, chicken and potato salad, and quiche.

OUT IN THE COMMUNITY

Community Service is becoming a big part of student life at Annie Wright. It is often that students will spend their time after school or on the weekends helping people less fortunate than themselves. This year there have been three major service projects worked on by the Upper School student body. The longest existing one is that of the Popcorn Pals. This has involved, for three years now, students that donate an hour and a half every Monday after school to The Tacoma Lutheran Home. The students make popcorn and distribute it around the nursing home to the residents. The students spend time and lend an ear to some very friendly old people. The second longest existing project is Nativity House. The first Saturday of each month students go to downtown Tacoma where they feed pancakes and fruit cocktail to any hungry people who might wander in to Nativity House. This has been the most interesting for students to be able to see a different walk of life. The newest and most regular project is that of helping with the renovation of a house designed to accommodate people with AIDS. Every Saturday students may help with the renovation. The house is scheduled to open the end of March 1990. The level of community awareness has really been raised over the past couple of years. AWS and its students have gained more recognition in the Tacoma Community.

National Honor Society

The National Honor Society is a group of faculty selected students based on academic performance. Those students selected must maintain a grade point of 3.5, or they will be expelled from the club, and never invited back. Needless to say much academic pressure is placed on these girls.

Honor Board

Left to right: Lynn Liu, Keiko Nakatsuka, Trina Schoenberg, Michelle Brignone, Rachel Bacon

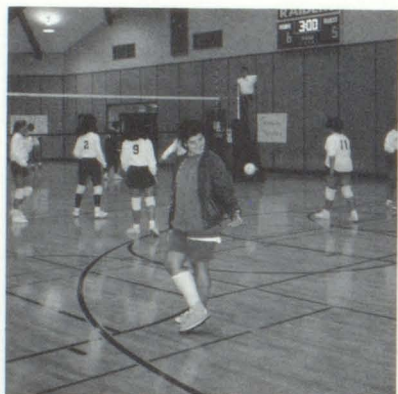

The Honor Board is a student disciplinary group. When a student breaks a rule, they go before Honor Board who then listens to all sides of the story and decides on a punishment for the student. The president of Honor Board is the Vice- President of the student body

SOCIAL COMMITTEE

The major decision-maker concerning our dances and social functions is the social/dance committee. Some of their plans are for parent/daughter events, and fall/winter dances.

Katy Albea shows enthusiasm for any kind of social event. Katy is serving as this year's club president.

Tina Metroplous and Bridget Bjork have been working hard on an article for the next issue of The Inkwell.

Drama

This year the drama department undertook many big and exciting projects. Under the direction of Micheal Self, the Kemper Center theater has been pretty booked, with student productions and otherwise. In the fall, the students produced a play called When Shakespeare's Ladies Meet. The play was directed by Mr. Self and was performed on parents weekend for all of our parents. The short play was about five of Shakespeare's most famous females trying to give Juliet advice right after she has fallen in love with Romeo. The play was very well done with many farcical statements coming right from Shakespeare himself. The large production of the year was the annual student faculty production. This year Goeffry Chaucer's Canterbury Tales was the chosen script. The play originally caused some controversy but the final product was delightfully witty. It was produced in pure

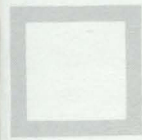

Chaucer style. As much of Chaucer's sometimes crude humor was left in as was acceptable, and the drama department recommended parental guidance. The play was again very funny and very entertaining. For this year's spring production, the drama class will be performing several acts from a variety of pieces. All of the actors will come directly from the drama class that is offered third trimester. Similarly all of the technical support for our student productions have come from the drama tech classes from first and second trimesters. The drama tech students ran lights, sound and controlled noisy actors back stage all under the direction of Judy Beunnagel who is the stage manager of the theater. The pictures on this page are all photos from the production of the Canterbury Tales.

Varsity Volleyball

The Annie Wright Gator's Volleyball team had an awesome season this year. The Gators finished up in post-season play. The record of 13-3 that they held, only behind North Seattle Christian, took them to the league tournament where they finished first. From there the gators went to the district tournament. The district tournament put them in the top 15 teams of western Washington. Way to spike it gators!

The Gators got off to a slow start with the Basketball season. Eventually, however, they adjusted their speeds to win mode, to begin a definite comeback. The first part of the season just lacked something that was not easy to determine. Once the Gators did however, fix the problem, the wins began to happen. By the end of the season there was much more self-confidence and comfort with the abilities of the team. The season did end in a learning experience and in fun, why play sports if otherwise?

The Gators did not do all that bad, they did qualify to play in one league tournament game versus Mountlake Christian.

Annie Wright's Cross-Country team placed second in the League, but only the top team in the League is invited to the State Meet. Coach Toney Layton said, "Although we didn't make it to State, we had our best times as a team this year. The Competition among A/B Schools is getting keener. The finishing times for the A/B Schools at State were generally better than the AA teams. The Sea-Tac League is more competitive than ever." One team member did make it to State independently. Aaron Goodman came in fourth at the League's District Meet which qualified her to run in the State Meet in Pasco. Aaron broke Annie Wright's record for a state meet with a time of 22:37 for a three mile course.

In the Seventh Grade

Seventh grade has had an exciting year learning about ourselves. We have explored new topics such as Japanese, minorities, and algebra. When seventh graders were asked how to describe their year, they replied, "rad", "cool", "awesome", "fun". Next year's seventh grade has much to look forward to. Being in the seventh grade we are no longer the youngest in the middle school, which allows for some more freedom because we already know the ropes. As well, it is exciting to know that we will be in the eighth grade soon. Other exciting things for seventh graders include boarding life, varsity sports, and harder classes!!

New Kids

At the beginning of the year we built our logo around the people we are. We wanted this year to be filled with happiness. We wanted peace among our peers and we have done well at achieving our goal. The sixth grade believes that we have reached a good goal both socially and academically this year. Being a sixth grade grader is hard because middle school is all new with growing pains, however, we have all successfully adjusted.

Side Out Middle School Volleyball

The middle school girls volleyball team, did not have as successful of a season as they had hoped. They found that they ran into a lot of tough competition and were never quite reach their goal of beating some of that competition. However, the team showed much great improvement, and still serves well as a feeder into the upper school volleyball team. Hang in their girls and keep practicing, you'll get it next season.

Middle School Cross-Country

The middle school cross-country team had a very successful season this year. They won all of their meets, and had a large turn out. Each race consisted of a mile and a half through parks, woods, mud, and rain or shine. This is the second year that Annie Wright has a middle school cross-country team. This year the coach was Patti Falk. At each race there were three teams and the gators were the first place team at all three of their meets, and each runner did well personally.

Kitchen Staff

The kitchen staff is the group of people that are responsible for all of our meals here. They cook three meals a day for the students. There is virtually always a member of the kitchen staff at school. They do a good job of keeping us fed with much good taste.

House Keeping

The housekeeping staff takes care of the messes that we leave behind during the day. They come along behind us at night and clean each classroom and bathroom. They vacuum the floors and empty the garbage cans, and clean up after all the messes the students leave behind.

Maintenance Staff

The AWS maintenance staff are the men behind the mechanics of the physical Annie Wright. The maintenance department is in charge of the building upkeep and yard work. They are the behind the scenes fixers that keep our building running smoothly.

Bus Drivers

The Annie Wright busdrivers are those brave men and woman who transport many rowdy kids to and from school in their daily school bus routes. They are a faithful, funny, and very reliable group of people, not to mention great drivers.

AWS ACADEMICS ARE

The students of The Annie Wright School will be among tomorrow's leaders. They are challenged to think analytically and creatively, and are given occasion to communicate, to solve problems, and to make decisions. The students are urged to develop the skills necessary to anticipate change and to live with uncertainty. In an enjoyable environment and a trusting atmosphere, The Annie Wright School promotes a balance of intellectual, spiritual, cultural and physical growth. The school prepares students for the future by providing opportunities for them to experience success and a sense of self-worth. Through the nurturing of self-reliance, The Annie Wright School stimulates students to seek and accept challenges and to discover their own values.

"The classroom can move at a much faster pace because the students here catch on much quicker."

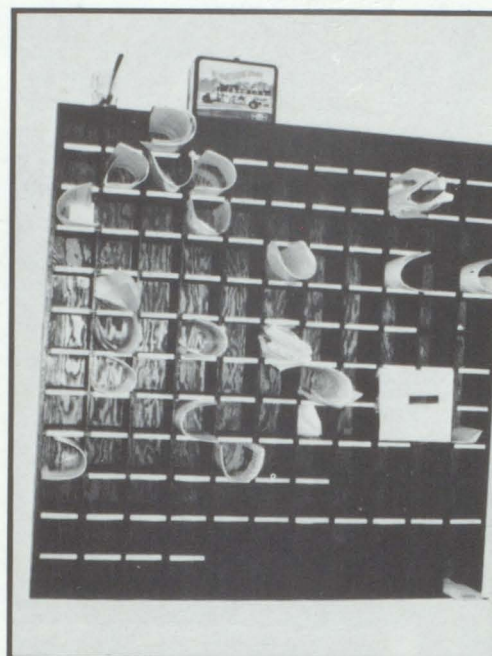

- Cynthia Pops

"Small classes add to the students' ability to do well."

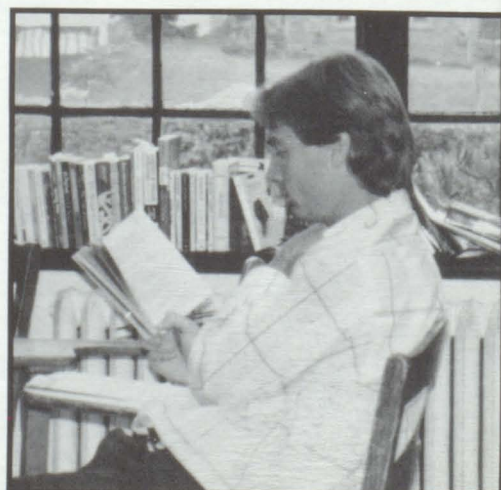

- Regan Armstrong

"10 times harder than my old public school."

Checking Out

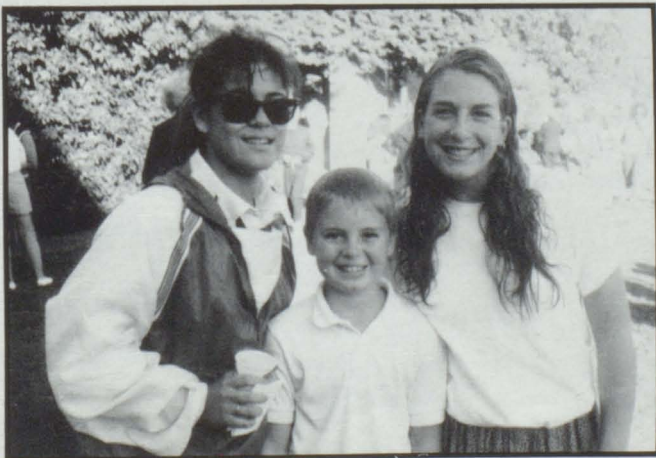

Together

One of the unique things about AWS worth checking out is its broad range of ages, cultures, and generations. These two pages were devoted to showing some of that interaction of different groups of people. It seems as though each student knows one other student who is of a different age. As well, many students are just good friends among their teachers. Annie Wright offers the opportunity to experience all different ages and cultures. It is definitely one aspect of AWS to check into.

It may seem as though many of these pictures were staged, but in fact many of them were not. Annie Wright really does have an interactive community, that was not to hard to capture.

FRIENDSHIP

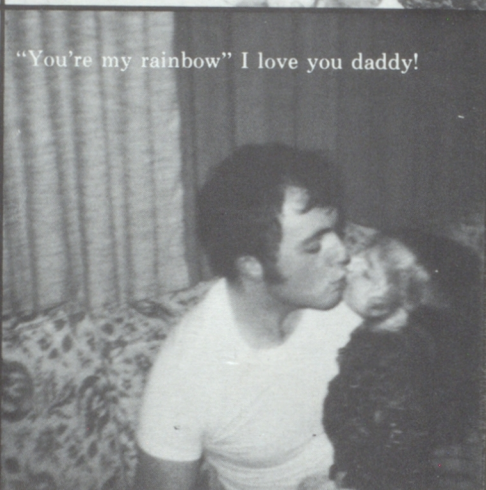

by Marguerite de Angel
Friendship is a silver ring.
Friendship is a lovely thing.
Just begins and has no end.
Doesn't even need to send
Messages on paper white.
Knows that all is well and right.
Lives on thoughts and true affection.
Now and then has this objection:
Time is short and meeting few.
So this brings my love to you.

FATE

by Carl Sandburg
Fate comes with pennies or dollars.
An Indian head or the Goddess of Liberty;
it is all the same to Fate.
One day copper, one day silver ...

Look out world here I come

"You're my rainbow" I love you daddy!
